Plecto

Plecto is a pioneering knitted mesh textile with a woollen surface. Designed by Febrik, it has a sporty, multidimensional expression that brings associations with hi-tech apparel.

Extremely comfortable, Plecto combines two contrasting layers: a meshed surface predominantly crafted from wool and a base layer made from polyester. This gives the textile a unique look which explores, and changes with, perspective. As it stretches over furniture, the holes in the mesh open to reveal glimpses into its construction.

The palette for Plecto is carefully calibrated to complement the design's fresh, technical character. It ranges from masculine dark notes and subtle neutrals to bright highlight tones.

The three-dimensionality of the textile is particularly pronounced when combining two contrasting colours, while other colourways have a more subtle, tone-in-tone appearance.

Typically for a knitted textile, Plecto offers excellent elasticity and is therefore an optimal choice for organically shaped furniture. Due to its two contrasting layers, it is ideal for mixing and matching with plain, unicoloured textiles.

Plecto is suitable for public spaces and private homes.

Febrik

Co-owned by Kvadrat, Febrik is a young, dynamic Dutch interior textile brand, which brings a new generation of knitted textiles to the world by re-exploring existing techniques. Developed and produced in-house, Febrik textiles are characterised by exceptional craftsmanship and quality. Each design offers a distinctive combination of sophistication, tactility and top-tier performance.
